During the opening ceremony, Mrs. Hannah Foster, Executive Director of the African Centre for Democracy and Human Rights Studies, speaking on behalf of the NGO Forum Steering Committee, stated that the Forum recognized the positive developments in the human rights and democracy situation in Africa but asserted, however that a lot more needs to be done as many African countries continue to face challenges of various human rights violations. She congratulated the Special Procedures Mandate Holders of the United Nations and the African Commission on the successful implementation of the first two years of the Roadmap adopted by the two institutions in January 2012 and reiterated civil society organisations’ full support for such collaboration. Mrs. Forster ended her statement with an appeal to States, which have not ratified regional and international human rights instruments to speedily do so; and similarly to those which had ratified to ensure their effective implementation.

8. Mrs. Kagwiria Mbogori, Chairperson of the Kenya National Commission on Human Rights, speaking on behalf of the Network of African National Human Rights Institutions, seized the opportunity to highlight the strides made during the past two years in fostering engagement and collaboration with African human rights mechanisms, specifically the African Commission, and to consequently set the tone for the future. She urged the Commission to continue collaborating and supporting the work of the NHRI Network, especially as the latter has entered into its new strategic planning period.

9. Ms. Yanine Poc, OHCHR Regional Representative for Southern Africa, speaking on behalf of Ms. Navi Pillay, UN High Commissioner for Human Rights, affirmed that the Session organised by the African Commission is a forum to reflect on the situation of human rights on the continent, and to carve out ways to respond to and address the human rights of all. She raised concern on the human rights situation in South Sudan and the Central African Republic (CAR). She also highlighted measures that have been taken so far by the Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights with regard to these two countries.

10. She stated that the denial of fundamental rights relating to employment, housing, food or respect for cultural life, together with discrimination and exclusion from the decision-making processes of society, are the root causes of many grave crises and conflicts. She underscored that the resolution of such crises, and the consolidation of social harmony, rest on respect for all human rights. In this regard, she emphasized the need to strengthen strong partnership between the UN and the African Commission to address human rights challenges in Africa. Ms. Poc also expressed concern regarding reprisals against human rights activists and defenders in their quest to better the lives of others. She appealed to all stakeholders to denounce reprisals, defend free voices and protect victims of reprisals. She also underscored the need to protect and expand the space in which civil society can meaningfully participate and contribute to human rights promotion, peace and development.

11. Speaking on behalf of African Union Member States, Her Excellency Aïchetou Mint M’Haiham, Commissioner for Human Rights, Humanitarian Action and Relations with Civil Society of the Islamic Republic of Mauritania, commended the Commission’s efforts in the promotion and protection of human and peoples’ rights in Africa. On the situation of human rights, the Commissioner drew attention to challenges confronting the continent, which include poverty, terrorism, cross border organized crime, armed conflicts, displacement of persons, climate change and environmental degradation. She called on all stakeholders to join forces in addressing these challenges. The Commissioner highlighted recent developments in the human rights situation in Mauritania such as freedom of the press, constitutional guarantees on crimes relating to slavery, cultural diversity and political change for a greater participation of women as well as a revitalized political class bringing the youth on-board. She concluded by reaffirming the commitment of States parties to fulfil their obligations under the African Charter and other African human rights instruments.

12. Honourable Justice Bernard Ngoepe, Vice-President of the African Court on Human and Peoples' Rights, averred that the regular invitation for the Court to attend and address the Commission’s Sessions reflects the excellent relations and complementarity of the two institutions. He stated that the rich jurisprudence of the Commission has been widely used to strengthen the jurisprudence of the Court. Justice Ngoepe stressed that 2016 has been declared as “African Year of Human Rights with Particular Focus on the Rights of Women”. This, he said is a result of the initiative by the Commission and the Court, and called upon all stakeholders interested in the promotion and protection of human rights on the Continent, to find a way of contributing to this initiative. In conclusion, he called upon those Member States that have not yet ratified the Protocol establishing the Court, to urgently ratify the same and make the declaration provided for in article 34(6), if they are truly committed to the protection of human rights in their countries and on the continent as a whole.

13. Dr Salah Hammad, Senior Legal Expert at the Department of Political Affairs of the African Union Commission, speaking on behalf of Dr Aisha Abdullahi, Commissioner for Political Affairs of the African Union Commission, commended the commitment of H.E. the President of the Republic of Angola and his Government to the promotion and protection of human rights in Angola and in Africa. He stated that the continued support of the Republic of Angola to the African Union human rights agenda is clearly demonstrated by its hosting of the 55th Ordinary Session of the African Commission. He stated that the Ordinary Session is taking place at a time when the African Union is implementing its Strategic Plan 2014-2017, which prioritizes the promotion and protection of human and peoples’ rights, peace and stability, democracy and good governance as foundations for sustainable development and stable societies in Africa.

14. Dr Salah Hammad indicated that holding this Session a few days after the commemoration of the 20th anniversary of the Rwanda genocide, afforded an opportunity to mark the resolve of African States to never again allow genocide in Africa. He affirmed that the realization of a common vision of a united and prosperous Africa as well as the building of a culture of promoting and protecting human and peoples’ rights remained a great task, requiring a common resolve. In this regard, he emphasized that the participation of all African peoples in this important process is essential for the promotion of human rights, good governance, respect for democratic principles and the rule of law as underscored in the Constitutive Act of the African Union. He congratulated the members of the African Commission for their unrelenting efforts to the promotion and protection of human and peoples’ rights on the continent.

15. In her opening statement, the Chairperson of the Commission, Honourable Commissioner Kayitesi Zainabo Sylvie, expressed her sincere gratitude and appreciation to the Government and people of Angola for hosting the 55th Ordinary Session of the Commission.

16. Speaking on the current human rights situation on the continent, she expressed concern about the increase in acts of terrorism and political strife, in particular the situation in the Arab Republic of Egypt, in the Republic of Kenya, in the Republic of Mali, in the Central African Republic, in the Republic of Sudan, in the Republic of South Sudan and in the Federal Republic of Nigeria. She highlighted cases of gross violations of the right to life such as the continuous and coordinated attacks of the Boko Haram in different parts of Nigeria, particularly in the northern part of the country, the daily killing of people of the Muslim faith by the Anti-Balaka Militia which continues in the Central African Republic, the armed groups in Mali which continue to attack and maim innocent civilians, as well as in South Sudan and Sudan where many people are also routinely killed and injured. She further deplored the fact that, in most cases, perpetrators of these acts do so with impunity. She underscored the need for African States and the international community as a whole to step up to these challenges so that the ideals of the African Charter and other international human rights instruments which State Parties have ratified and committed themselves to will be effectively implemented and have meaning for the African citizenry.

17. The Chairperson also expressed her indignation at reprisals against human rights defenders. In this regard, she recalled Resolution ACHPR/196 (L) 11 adopted by the Commission at its 50th Ordinary Session held from 22 October to 5 November 2011 in Banjul, The Gambia, condemning all forms of reprisals against people who collaborate with the African system of human rights. She therefore called upon States Parties to implement this Resolution and avoid all forms of intimidation and reprisals against all those who collaborate with the Commission and/or participate in its Sessions. She concluded her statement by acknowledging and expressing appreciation of the efforts of all human rights stakeholders who have provided unfailing support to the Commission. She urged them to continue to render this support to the Commission allowing it to fulfil its mandate.

18. Honourable Rui Mangueira, Minister of Justice and Human Rights of the Republic of Angola welcomed participants to the 55th Ordinary Session of the African Commission. He stated that this Session afforded a great opportunity to jointly examine the human rights situation in Africa. In this light, he seized the opportunity to highlight the implementation of fundamental human rights in Angola. With regard to Africa as a whole, the Honourable Minister of Justice stated that the human rights situation in Africa calls for greater attention and that each situation needed to be analysed separately, given the specificities of each State.
