The letter was submitted as part of the Commission’s mandate for the promotion and protection of human and peoples’ rights under Article 45 of the African Charter, and in pursuit of the affirmation of the central importance of human and peoples’ rights for the success of the continental and national efforts to end COVID-19.

27. The Commission, through its Chairperson, sent a letter to the Chairperson of the AU Commission, H.E. Moussa Faki Mahamat concerning the state of the African human rights system. The deliberations of the session resulted in the adoption of the communique of the 953rd session of the PSC on the consultative meeting with the Commission. Details of the communique are available on the link here https://au.int/en/pressreleases/20201008/communique-953rd-meeting-psc.

xxi. Adoption of the Law on the Fight Against Discrimination and Hate Speech by Algeria in April 2020; xxii. Adoption of a social protection policy by the Cabinet of Rwanda on 14 June 2020;

b) Areas of concern

57. The Commission notes with concern the following human rights challenges observed during the reporting period:

i. The low rate of ratification of the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples’ Rights on the Rights of Older Persons in Africa (the Protocol on the Rights of Older Persons) and the Protocol to the African Charter on Human and Peoples’ Rights on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities in Africa (the Protocol on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities), which is impeding their entry into force;

ii. The non-submission of Periodic Reports to the Commission in violation of Article 62 of the African Charter, with six (6) States Parties which have not submitted a single Report;

iii. Passage of the bill on Written Laws (Miscellaneous Amendments Act (No. 3) of 2020 which inter alia seeks to abolish public interest litigation by requiring Tanzanian nationals, other persons and civil society organizations to prove how an action complained of “has affected that person personally”;

iv. Failure to domesticate the Violence Against Persons Act in twenty-two (22) states in Nigeria, resulting in the lack of specific laws ensuring protection against SGBV in these states;

v. The continuing threat of terrorism, and its escalation in Nigeria, Burkina Faso, Niger and Chad, with particular reference to the persistent multiple and grievous attacks being perpetrated by the Terrorist Group Boko Haram against innocent civilians (including humanitarian aid workers) as well as soldiers, in the Lake Chad region, including brutal killings, abductions, suicide bombings, and attacks on army equipment and logistics, amongst others;

vi. Reports of acts of terrorism, violent extremism and threats of annexation of the Northern Province by Islamist militants in Mozambique;

vii. The situations of unrest on the continent, including in Mali and Ethiopia, which have resulted in loss of lives and destruction of property;

viii. The worsening security and human rights situation in Libya, including reports of an intensification of indiscriminate attacks on civilian areas of the Libyan capital Tripoli, during which several civilians were injured or killed and homes and other infrastructure damaged;

ix. The persistence of the application of the death penalty, with fifty-seven (57) recorded executions in 2019 in a number of countries in Africa;

x. The systematic pattern of judicial harassment, intimidation and arbitrary arrest and detention of human rights defenders in several countries in Africa;

xi. The death sentence pronounced by the Bamako Anti-Terrorist Assize Court in Mali on 28 October 2020 against three jihadists prosecuted for the deadly attacks perpetrated in 2015 in Bamako at the Radisson Blu and at the Terrasse;

xii. The locust infestation which is threatening crops and livelihoods in Eastern Africa;

xiii. The deteriorating situation of African migrants and the loss of many lives in recent months in the Mediterranean Sea, in addition to the expulsion and forced return of asylum seekers and migrants;

xiv. The situation of African migrants in Middle Eastern countries, who suffer from multiple human rights violations (collective expulsions, detention in deplorable conditions, inhuman treatment during arrests, acts of xenophobia, infringements of the right to life, etc.), with particular reference to the concerning fate of Ethiopian women domestic workers, sent back and abandoned on the streets by their Lebanese employers in the midst of a health crisis since June 2020;
xv. The scale and frequency of natural disasters affecting our continent (floods caused by increasingly frequent and violent torrential rains, drought wave, landslides, devastating cyclones, etc.) as a result of climate change and its consequences, which have led to more forced displacement of populations and temporary resettlement;

xvi. The unconstitutional change of Government in Mali; xvii. The context of violence, inter-communal tensions and repression of fundamental rights that has surrounded several recent elections on the African continent, which has involved disruption of activities of the opposition parties as well as the muzzling of CSOs, journalists and other human rights defenders, and consequently interferences with, amongst others, the freedom of expression and right to information as well as the right to political participation. Many elections held in the year 2020 were chaotic, leading to loss of lives and destruction of property during confrontations with security agents, including the post-electoral chaos in Ivory Coast and Guinea Conakry, and reported intimidation and attacks in Tanzania; xviii. Protests in Nigeria resulting from police brutality and reports of excessive use of lethal force including the use of live ammunition by the Nigerian military and the Nigerian Police, against peaceful protesters (#ENDSARS protest) and the resultant loss of lives and injuries, noting in particular the Lekki Toll Gate shootings of 20 October 2020;

xix. The consequent chaos that resulted from the hijack of the otherwise hitherto peaceful #ENDSARS protests in Nigeria by criminal actors and opportunist elements, including looting and destruction of public and private properties, attacks on, police personnel and properties, media houses and government properties;

xx. The socio-political crisis in Ethiopia, which has witnessed major incidents of violence targeting civilians and a military confrontation in the Tigray region, and which disturbingly has started to lead to major acts of violence against civilians, ethnic based profiling, arrest of journalists, a humanitarian crisis with thousands of people forced to flee into neighbouring Sudan, a spike in hate speeches and an epidemic of fake news and misinformation;

xxi. The long-standing civil unrest in Cameroon and fighting between government, Anglophone fighters and Boko Haram which has continued to occasion grievous violations of the rights of innocent civilians, as well as other prolonged and protracted armed conflicts in the Sahel region, Central African Republic and parts of the Democratic Republic of the Congo, among others;

xxii. Reported persisting lockdown and arrest of human rights defenders, especially journalists in Algeria, Egypt and Tunisia; xxiii. Recurring issues of the plight of the African youth population who are the energy required to drive the socio-economic growth of the continent, but whose rights are being grossly violated, especially their right to socio-economic development, and which situation has resulted, amongst others, in their restiveness, which regrettably is often met by further violations of rights with the use of excessive force on them during peaceful protests, as well as their illegal and dangerous migrations, which have led to loss of lives including in the Mediterranean sea;

xxiv. Continuing human rights challenges being faced by African children, including, amongst others: the persistent issue of malaria, pneumonia, diarrhoea and other preventable diseases affecting them; impediments to their access to education and health services including high cost and long distances; and their undue exposure to sexual exploitation, worst forms of child labour, child trafficking, and abuse and mistreatment during migration; and

xxv. Threat to the independence of the judiciary, characterized by the use of the judiciary to prosecute political opponents, civil society activists including journalists, as well as related violations of Freedom of Expression and Freedom of Assembly of these groups, including as reported in Malawi, Tanzania and Zimbabwe.

Human Rights Situation in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic

58. While commending the measures put in place by the States Parties to contain the spread of the coronavirus and mitigate the effects of these measures, the Commission regrets the emergence of human rights violations during this period, including:

xxvi. The negative impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on social and economic rights, such as the right to education, the right to the best attainable state of health, and the right to adequate food, shelter and other basic needs, most notably water and sanitation, which is disproportionately affecting the most vulnerable groups in society, including the poor, women and girls, and persons with disabilities, among others;

xxvii. The loss of livelihoods as a result of mitigation measures, such as lockdown and curfew orders, which have had a particularly devastating effects on the informal sector;

xxviii. The possibility of the region’s first recession in 25 years, with economic growth projected to decline from 2.4% in 2019 to between -2.1 to -5.1%, with the resultant negative effects such as hunger and poverty, among others; xxix. The temporary discontinuation of the provision of public services, with the potential for millions to lack access to basic services;

xxx. The excessive use of force by law enforcement officers while enforcing the mitigation measures such as lockdown and curfew orders, with reported cases of police brutality resulting in killings, torture, in addition to arbitrary arrests and forced quarantine imposed on people violating the measures;

xxxi. Anti-terrorism laws have been used to crackdown on protesters and the closure of courts in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic have made access to justice difficult, with adverse effect on prisons;

xxxii. The pandemic has further widened the gap between the have and have-nots and revealed inequalities and injustices in many communities;
Corruption persists in Africa and is a major issue especially in the days of the pandemic, as mismanagement and lack of accountability by public officials for funds made available for the pandemic have proven elusive in many African countries;

The alarming rises in cases of sexual and gender based violence during the pandemic, for example the declaration by all thirty-six (36) of Nigeria’s Governors of a state of emergency over rape and other gender-based violence against women and children in the country, as well as increased stigmatization, discrimination and hate speech associated with COVID-19;

The COVID-19 pandemic has negatively impacted the normal way of protecting the rights of women and girls and the provision of services including access to health services and information on sexual and reproductive health rights;

Being among the most vulnerable members of society, children face the potential to be significantly affected during the pandemic, including specifically children with disabilities, children from economically disadvantaged families, children living in rural areas, and children seeking asylum or refugee status. The socio-economic impact of the pandemic has affected children in various ways as they do not have access to food, and basic health services;

Lack of access to education for millions of students especially those living in rural areas, who do not have access to online schooling, and as well, home stay measures have further exposed them to sexual abuse and exploitation, as well as violence, mostly by family members;

School closures and extended school holidays due to the pandemic have occasioned a rise in cases of FGM and child marriage in practicing communities across the continent;

The exclusion of refugees, internally displaced persons (IDPs), asylum seekers and migrants from the protection measures employed by the State Parties during the COVID-19 pandemic, and the lack of facilities to ensure measures such as social distancing and isolation in refugee camps;

The disruption of humanitarian supplies to refugees, migrants and IDPs;

The reduction in the issuance of official documentation to refugees and asylum seekers, which hinders their access to social services;

The closure of borders between certain countries which has prevented access to asylum seekers and refugees fleeing persecution;

The loss of employment opportunities affecting the youth, who constitute a sizeable portion of the population on the continent and who also face a future with limited social and economic prospects as a result of the pandemic;

Overcrowding and lack of sanitary conditions in prisons which have the potential to result in the spread of the coronavirus, in addition to the failure of States to curb prison admission rates, including the overuse of remand for petty offences;

Reported cases of arbitrary and unlawfully arrest of journalists and human rights defenders during the pandemic; xlvi. The rise of human rights violations committed against health workers, such as arbitrary arrest and detention, with health workers emerging as a category of human rights defenders requiring protection by the States;
xlvii. Restrictions of freedom of expression and access to information under the guise of the COVID-19 pandemic, with reported cases on suspension of media licenses, shut down of internet services restricting the right to access information and the use of disinformation and hate speech laws to restrict freedom of expression; xlviii. Situations of conflict on the continent, such as in the northern part of Mozambique, which has led to displacement, loss of life, and compounded the COVID-19 situation;
xlix. Violations of the rights of indigenous communities, including reported cases of death threats, forced evictions and burning of homes;
  l. Lack of information or awareness about COVID-19 to indigenous communities, due to several difficulties including lack of radio, television, newspapers and/or community relays;
  li. Restrictions on movement which have hindered access to essential health services, such as programs addressing maternal and infant mortality and HIV/AIDS, and essential sexual and reproductive healthcare;
  lii. The potential for an increase in superstition motivated killing of persons with albinism in the Eastern and Southern African region; liii. The effects of the COVID-19 pandemic are hitting the continent very hard, including sudden, sharp falls in remittances, foreign direct investment, commodity prices and tourism;
  liv. Dangerous and negative trends in the context of responses to the COVID-19 pandemic, including the rise of anti-human rights and anti-democratic forces taking advantage of the COVID-19 health crisis to further assert authority or tighten hold on traumatized citizenry; restrictions on and violations on freedom of expression, association, movement and assembly also take prominence during these times of Covid-19; and law enforcement officials implementing Covid-19 regulations have been reported to use disproportionate force on citizens, in many documented cases, including the use of live ammunitions; and
  lv. Digital inequality, particularly in the context of the COVID-19 pandemic, poses a major challenge, with additional implications for other guaranteed human rights, and therefore needs to be enhanced.

XIII. ADMINISTRATIVE AND FINANCIAL SITUATION

a) Construction of the Commission’s Headquarters

59. Whereas the Commission and the host Government intended to hold a Foundation stone laying ceremony on the proposed site for the headquarters on the margins of the 66th Ordinary Session, this ceremony had to be postponed from March 2020 due to the COVID-19 epidemic.
60. Furthermore, as a follow-up to the Executive Council’s Decisions EX.CL/Dec.1045(XXXIV) and EX.CL/Dec. 1080(XXXVI), respectively on the 47th Activity Report of the Commission, which called for prioritization, concrete plans and activation of relevant resource mobilization by the Gambian Government, with facilitation by the AUC, towards the construction of the Commission’s Headquarters, the Secretariat of the Commission, during the reporting period, re-commenced engagement with the Government of the Host country to discuss modalities for the mobilization of resources for the commencement of the project.

61. The Ministry of Justice of The Gambia confirmed its openness to explore joint resource mobilization with partners for the construction of the headquarters, and it is expected that relevant concrete collaborations by the Gambian Government and the AUC, will be duly initiated, in line with the referenced Executive Council Decisions and applicable AU processes and procedures, for resource mobilization for the establishment of the permanent headquarters.

b) Staffing

62. The Commission welcomes the appointment of Ms. Lindiwe Khumalo as the Acting Executive Secretary to the Commission.
